How County Official Tried To Block San Diego's Progress

(The Vista Press)

The story of how a permanent resident was lost to San Diego county as a result of the discourteous and high-handed methods employed by the office of Assessor J. H. Johnson is told in the following letter to the assessor's office, a copy of which was also sent to The Vista Press:

Mr. Ray G. Lanto, Assessor's Office, San Diego, Calif.

Dear Sir: I am enclosing herewith a money order for $48.11 for taxes. Please acknowledge by receipt.

I expected to retire in San Diego in the near future, but by forwarding your letter to the Commander, which contained many assumptions, your fair city has lost at least one and perhaps many prospective citizens. I intended making remittance as soon as I had accumulated sufficient funds before June 1, 1934.

Here's hoping the fleet does not return to San Diego.

Yours very truly,

JONATHAN H. WAMAN,

Lt. Comdr., U. S. Navy.

Navy Yard, Mare Island, California, 17 May, 1934.

When opposition to one of San Diego county's greatest sources of income is fostered by a public official, voters of the county should remember and give that fact serious consideration when the official comes before them seeking reelection.

Every voter, as he goes to the polls on Aug. 28, should have a full and complete knowledge of the activities of James Hervey Johnson, county assessor, in harassing, antagonizing, and opposing the development of naval facilities in San Diego harbor.

No matter what qualifications he may lay claim to, Johnson has sought to interfere with the orderly, planned development of San Diego harbor, and in so doing he has done everything in his power to prevent the establishment in San Diego of the greatest naval base of the Pacific coast.

Johnson's opposition to naval development here has been opposition to the economic well-being of the entire county.

Would Stop Naval Expansion

At the election of June 27, 1933, James Hervey Johnson was instrumental in placing on the ballot three propositions to amend the city charter, one of which—No. 2—would have taken harbor development out of the hands of the harbor commission and made of it a political football.

Had Proposition No. 2 received the approval of the voters, it would have dealt a death blow to naval expansion here. At that time, it would have meant the immediate loss of seven cruisers, already ordered to San Diego, with a four million dollar a year payroll. Only the defeat of Proposition No. 2 would provide for continuance of the funds needed for dredging.

During the campaign prior to the election, Johnson, in his capacity as assessor and as head of his Tax Reduction League, lost no opportunity to urge upon the citizens of San Diego the passage of Proposition No. 2. But voters, alert to the welfare of this community, disregarded Johnson's advice and killed Proposition No. 2 in a landslide of ballots.

Menace to Community Welfare

The menace in the position that Johnson took during the campaign is well illustrated in the following excerpt from an editorial in the Evening Tribune of June 19, 1933, urging the defeat of Proposition No. 2.

"No doubt exists as to the value of the naval activities to San Diego. They represent the major source of our income and a vital part of our community life. The fact that any faction would ignore this value indicates that the fight to establish sensible, efficient local government is entering its critical stage."

Not only has Assessor Johnson menaced the welfare of this community through such direct acts as the one outlined here, but he has done untold harm through the discourteous and unnecessarily abrupt handling of relations between his office and individual navy men. While every other interest in the city and county seeks to promote goodwill, Johnson's office has done many things to counteract the effect of that good work.

TIME TO SIT IN JUDGMENT

(Chula Vista Star)

There is daily more and more evidence appearing why there should be a change in the county assessor's office. With the great California Pacific International Exposition practically assured for San Diego next year, San Diego county cannot afford to have the assessor or any other county official for that matter, on the radio telling the world what a lot of crooks reside here. There is no excuse whatever for the discourteous treatment many people have been subjected to at the hands of the assessor. While it is perhaps true the assessor has placed some property on the assessment rolls that previously had escaped, still great harm has been done on the radio and through publication of his alleged newspaper, the Spotlight, although he now disclaims any responsibility for the publication.

It seems, surely, there are any number of capable and experienced men who could handle this office, with perhaps a great deal more of efficiency, of patience, of understanding of people's problems, and who at least would not rush to the radio to tell the whole world what a lot of crooks live in San Diego county. While the assessor has a wide following, we believe people generally are sick of his foolish tactics and will let him know they do not approve of the way he has conducted the assessor's office at the November elections.

MUSINGS WHILE MEANDERING

(By Merrill Stuart)

"Exposition Memories"—a book I browsed upon not long since. A "dainty" exposition, that one in 1916, the author said; and gave praise to the artists and writers who by song and story implanted it forever in heart and memory. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

A little later I stood upon Cabrillo bridge, musing upon another exposition we are to have in 1935—after nineteen years. The blue sea smiles on in unchanging sunniness; the great viaduct dominates the landscape as of old. The city, greatly grown, still dreamlike in the charm of its setting. Trees taller, swaying, whispering almost within reach as I lean over the parapet. Sweetly appealing architecture of buildings created for the exposition of 1916, nestling in serene unconsciousness of their satisfying delight. Shaded walks, restful ravines, water lilies far below; flowers, shrubbery more plentiful; plaza's pigeons endlessly strutting, gossiping; the great organ ready to burst into glorious music for pleasure of coming thousands. Long cool archways; bright gardens here and there; soft inviting lawns—beauty everywhere! An exposition set upon a hill—was ever inspiration like this before in all the world?

Multitudes from sea to sea will come again to see that beauty within our gates; memories taken away; joy forgotten. No city has greater privilege of permanence—because of beauty. And artists and writers will once more give vent to heart-felt literary expressions; it's part of our climate; they can't help it. And what will this exposition do for us—who live out here upon the ocean's edge? We'll share in its glories and benefits. Civic pride will awaken and spring into activity. Flowers where none bloomed before; magic of disappearing rubbish; beach clean and white overnight; backyards and alleys gay joy spots; swept streets; trim vacant lots, ugly buildings laid low—and much more!

Who knows how many visitors from far places will come—and tarry? Still speaking of that fishing pier:

"Are you a fisherman?" I asked my good neighbor, a gentleman of leisure. "You bet I am! I surely do like to go fishing!" Enthusiastically he started in to tell a fish story—well, you know how they do. "Then you're right in line for a pier in Ocean Beach?" I queried. "Sure thing!"

"What'll it do for our town?" "Say, it'll increase population—bring people here from all over. Why, long before we came here from Boston we heard about the wonderful fishing in California. It's a drawing card all right. We liked San Diego better than any other place we saw—and here we are!"

"And have you been fishing since you came?" I asked. "Only—just once," my neighbor answered regretfully. "And do you know, the real estate agent who sold us our house when we first came promised me a fishing pier right away as one of the main attractions here. Maybe that's why we settled here, I don't know. Anyway, that was eight years ago, and that fishing pier hasn't got here yet! Looks now as if it was really coming, though," he added hopefully. "I sure do like to go fishing!" and the dear man smiled as if in anticipation of all the fish he'll catch off the end of that fishing pier—when we get it.

A man who has waited eight years for a fishing pier so patiently can wait a little longer, surely.

Two great glorious trees sorrowfully felled—to make way for a building. Why couldn't the building have made way for the trees? Now no shaded aisles, no restful foliage against blazing blue, or soft light filtering thru. Which is the greater education, I wonder, beauty or utility?

Council Adjourns Before Petitions Presented

Quite a number of local residents attended the city council session Monday morning, to hear what action might be taken regarding a fishing pier at Ocean Beach.

During last week it was thought advisable to circulate petitions asking the pier be built. These petitions were in the stores and other business houses about three days and more than 1200 names were placed on them in that short time.

After sitting through one and one-half hours of council business, a move was suddenly made at 11:30 for adjournment and this procedure was carried out before the Ocean Beach committee could raise a voice in protest.

The local delegation immediately hunted up Councilman Al Bennett of this district, but he claimed ignorance of the petitions, and said the plans were still in the making, in the office of the city engineer.

This section has surely been treated in a most undesirable manner in their request for a fishing pier, which would be an asset to the whole of San Diego county, and we think Ocean Beach should treat every request from the city in a like manner when they come this way—asking favors, which is done pretty regularly by different organizations.

BAGS DEER AS OPEN SEASON STARTS

One of the first deer of the season was shot by Charles Moore, city engineer, who resides at 4775 Narragansett avenue. He bagged the buck at the crack of dawn on the first day of the season in the vicinity of Warner's Hot Springs.

Charlie Moore is one of the "old-timers" of well-known hunters in San Diego county.

Little Mary Elizabeth Hall, age 3, celebrated her birthday Tuesday, 1:30 p. m. with a lawn party at her home, 4839 Long Branch avenue. Guests were Beverly and Junie Wiener, Kenneth McLaren of east San Diego, Alice Pearl Hall and baby Ruth Steadham.

TELLS KIWANIANS OF AMERICA'S GREATEST MENACE

At Monday's luncheon past president I. J. Claspill had supervision due to the absence of the president, Myron Insko. Heber Hartvigsen acted as chairman of the day, substituting for Dr. F. R. Felt who found it necessary to be away.

The speaker was Rev. Francis Bloy from the Episcopal church of La Jolla and a member of the Kiwanis club there. He has been interested a number of years in the drug traffic and habit, calling it America's Greatest Menace. Statistics given showed the per capita consumption in the United States far ahead and many times greater than in any other nation of the world. The speaker said it took but five weeks to become a habitual user of the drug and rarely ever has there been a cure. Many sanitariums treat the patients but investigation shows they all return to the use of the drug in a very short time. Rev. Bloy believed the best method of dealing with the evil was by the control of production. There is now said to be 1500 times greater amount produced than is actually necessary for use in a medicinal way.

Bill Cords had as his guest N. G. Tichenor.

J. Wes Harrison of Altadena was a visiting Kiwanian.

CHICAGO PEOPLE BUY KENNETH CROSBY HOME

The May Co., reports the sale last week of the Kenneth Crosby home, corner Muir avenue and Guizot St., to Mr. and Mrs. Tschatter of Chicago. It is understood the sale was a cash deal, which makes it appear that Ocean Beach property is still in demand.

PERRY A. RITCHEY

OCEAN BEACH RESIDENT EXPIRES FROM HEART ATTACK

The body of Perry A. Ritchey, 63, 4844 Bermuda, who disappeared Sunday while on a deer hunting trip near Barrett reservoir, was found Monday afternoon by five CCC men and J. L. Boatwright, foreman of the CCC camp. Apparently the victim of heart disease, Ritchey's body was found in a rocky area about 300 feet above the level of the lake.

Boyd Moran, deputy sheriff, late last night reported that Ritchey apparently had walked 18 miles after leaving his two hunting companions, J. H. Custer, 4712 Pescadero ave., and G. A. Ault, 1018 South 29th St. Officers express the belief the victim became exhausted and lay down. His hat covered his face and his shoes had been removed.

The deceased leaves to mourn his sudden passing, his widow, Artie Smith Ritchey of 4844 Bermuda avenue. He was a brother of Mrs. May Duncan and uncle of Mrs. Ruth Alexander of Phoenix, Arizona.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ritchey have been quite active socially in fraternal and veteran organizations, he being a member of the Masonic and Eastern Star bodies and a Spanish war veteran.

The funeral services were held at 3 p. m. Wednesday under auspices of Blackmer lodge No. 442, F. & A. M. Entombment at Greenwood mausoleum.

COLORADOANS MAKE LONG DRIVE IN SHORT TIME

Stanley Martin of the Martin Packing Co., La Junta, Colorado, arrived here Monday morning, for a short visit with Mrs. Martin and two children who have been summering in Ocean Beach, in one of the George Kenline cottages on Santa Monica avenue.

Mr. Martin was accompanied by his daughter Milray and a friend Miss Keith Peterson, the three took turns at the wheel and made the 1800 miles in about 24 hours.

Mrs. Martin expects to remain here with the younger folks who will attend school and Mr. Martin has already left for his Colorado home.

CAUSEWAY TO HAVE SIGNS DIRECTING TRAFFIC

At the invitation of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce made some weeks ago, a representative of the Auto Club of Southern California, representing the field division, was here Friday last making a survey of the signs asked for, directing traffic to the beaches over West Point Loma Blvd.

The representative stated he favored three signs being put up which was ample to direct traffic from either direction, and believed they would be erected within a very short time.

NEGRO BOY'S BODY RECOVERED FRIDAY

Last Friday, fishermen on the Ocean Beach bridge discovered the body of the negro lad, Horace Small, had caught on some kelp near the north end of the bridge.

The boy disappeared Tuesday evening while swimming. As soon as the body was seen, one of the bait houses was notified and equipment secured for recovering it.

Tich's Tavern Opening Saturday Nite, Aug. 25

Remodeling of Tich's Tavern at the foot of Newport avenue continues this week. The dance floor is ready and the peppy 7-piece orchestra has been furnishing free music since Tuesday evening. The bar, it is expected, will be operating by the time this issue of the News is in the mail.

Bischoff and Schmidt have the game concessions which pay the winners in scrip good at practically all business houses in Ocean Beach at 100c on the dollar.

Al J. Hanniman has the restaurant concession and claims to be a food handler of long experience in San Diego. His aunt has conducted the Pullman Cafeteria for the past nineteen years. This department has an open counter to the beach as well as entrance to the dance hall.

According to advertising elsewhere in the Ocean Beach News, Acme beer and Ramona wines will be featured at Tich's Tavern, where you are invited to dine, dance and romance to tantalizing music.

The grand opening is set for Saturday, August 25, and you should not miss it if you enjoy this type of entertainment.

NEW SAN DIEGO CITY MANAGER FROM LONG BEACH

Fred M. Lockwood, Monday resigned as San Diego's city manager and within a few hours his resignation had been accepted by the council and George L. Buck, former Long Beach city manager, was appointed to the post. He was sworn in at 4:15 p. m.

Buck, who is 44 years old and married, announced immediately after his appointment that he would keep Lockwood as his first assistant. The new manager will receive $7500 salary annually. Lockwood's salary as manager was $4800 a year. Buck will take over the manager's office today, as soon as his bond of $25,000 has been approved by the city attorney.

Lockwood probably will start a month's vacation next week and then return as Buck's assistant. Lockwood became manager May 31, 1933, when he replaced A. V. Goeddel.

Lockwood's resignation came as a surprise to many.

ALSO NEW CHIEF OF POLICE

George Sears, detective lieutenant and for more than 19 years a member of the department, Wednesday afternoon was appointed chief of police by the new city manager. Sears' appointment probably will be confirmed by the council Monday.

Appointment of Sears came within a few minutes after Chief Peterson resigned, effective Sept. 6. Until that date Sears will be acting chief while Peterson takes his annual two weeks' vacation.

TO QUIET TITLE MISSION BEACH LANDS

Major George B. Bowers was in conference several days the past week with an official of the state attorney general's office and leaseholders of lands adjoining Mission Bay state park.

Major Bowers stated a friendly suit was filed Wednesday morning at 10 a. m., that would settle title to all the leaseholds on the south side of Mission bay from Atlantic street to Mission bay bridge.

This matter is of extreme importance to Ocean Beach for the reason that the city of San Diego has plans to construct dressing rooms and a recreation building near the street railway junction on the bay.

Volley Tennis Contests Here Saturday Evening

A volley tennis playoff will be held at the Ocean Beach recreation center Saturday evening, at 7 p. m., between teams from Golden Hill, San Diego Swimming club, Pacific Beach and Ocean Beach.

The contest is being held for the main purpose of securing picnic equipment for the playground, therefore, admission will be for each person, a cup, a plate, knife and fork or other utensil.

Von Hindenburg Dies and Hitler Seizes Presidency of Germany—Roosevelt's Economic Security Program Is Being Formulated.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© by Western Newspaper Union.

Paul Von Hindenburg
The reichspräsident is united with that of the reichschancellor. In consequence thereof, powers heretofore exercised by the reichspräsident are transferred to der fuhrer (Hitler) and the vice-chancellor (Franz von Papen). He (Hitler) determines who shall be his deputy.

Hitler for the first time became also the commander of the reichswehr or regular army, and Gen. Werner von Blomberg issued an order that every soldier must pledge absolute loyalty to the death to Hitler.

Ever since his great victory at Tannenberg, early in the World war, Von Hindenburg had been the idol of the German people and their grief over his death was general and sincere. Their expressions of sorrow were mingled with veiled but anxious discussions concerning the possible effects on the reich of the aged leader's death and the assumption of full power by Hitler. The president, though forced to give the Nazi chief the chancellorship, had been a constant check on extreme Nazism, and he had the full confidence of other nations that has never been accorded to any other German since the war. As Jacob Gould Schurman, former American ambassador to Berlin, puts it:

"Now that Von Hindenburg is gone, no successor, having regard to his achievements, his prestige, and his tried and tested character, can, at least for a considerable time, create an atmosphere equally favorable to diplomatic negotiations with foreign powers."

Doctor Schurman, however, does not believe the Hitler regime is in danger of falling at this time. He says the German people are not naturally rash and revolutionary and probably will give Hitler a chance to seek a solution of the economic problems that confront the country.

Von Hindenburg, who was eighty-six years old, was a patriot all his life, a veteran of three wars and a marshal of the empire under Kaiser Wilhelm. He was a hard fighter but a kindly gentleman. He supported the republic when it was created but at heart he was always faithful to the self-exiled kaiser. His last days were clouded by the realization that he had failed in the effort to really check Nazism.

CHANCELLOR SCHUSCHNIGG of Austria appeared to have the Nazi revolt completely under control and was making overtures to the Social Democrats and the workers, the latter being warmly praised for not taking part in the putsch as the Nazis had expected they would. The trial of the leaders in the uprising was conducted with dignity and the condemnation and execution of two of them—the man who actually killed Dollfuss and the chief of the raid—were taken as matters of course. Another Nazi, who killed a police captain of Innsbruck about the same time the chancellor was being murdered, also was found guilty and hanged.

Three thousand Nazis who took part in the outbreak in Carinthia escaped to Yugoslavia and were disarmed, and the Belgrade government now wonders what to do with them.

WITH monarchists in control of the Austrian government the royalists of that country and of Hungary resumed their schemes for putting the young Archduke Otto on the old throne of the Hapsburgs. There are reports that they held a secret meeting in Vitznau, Switzerland, and formed a restoration plan which they hoped would be acceptable to France, Italy, Great Britain and the little entente. Their first object was to secure the approval of Premier Mussolini. Leaders in the movement are Colonel Randa of the Austrian army, Felix Dunke, an Austrian monarchist, and Count Hojós of Hungary.

According to the story current in Paris, the condition placed by the little entente and the big powers to allowing Otto to assume the throne is that he will sign a pledge guaranteeing the present boundaries and other terms of existing treaties with regard to Austria and the succession states.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT returned to the mainland from his Hawaiian cruise. The Houston and the New Orleans moved up the Oregon coast, stopped briefly at Astoria and entered the Columbia river. The Presidential party debarked at Portland and almost immediately boarded a train which carried them rapidly eastward. Stops were made at the Bonneville project in Oregon and the Grand Coulee irrigation and power project in Washington. Mr. Roosevelt spent Sunday in Glacier national park and then continued his journey homeward.

IN ITS monthly survey of business the American Federation of Labor issued a warning that the enormous expenditures of the government for emergency needs and the artificial increase of buying power, if continued, will lead to currency inflation to meet the huge accumulating deficits.

It called attention to the steadily mounting tax burden, the extension of the relief rolls, the decline in business credit with the increase of government borrowing and the failure of NRA to put men to work in industry.

"The government cannot go on borrowing more than its income for very long," the statement said. "We can not go on increasing buying power in this way without a general expansion of production and consumption. Industry cannot pull itself up by its own boot straps."

ONE of Mr. Roosevelt's pet projects, the program for greater economic and social security, already is being mapped out by the special committee, including several cabinet members, that was named to get ready the necessary legislation for action by the next congress. Executive director of this committee, and therefore the most important member, is Prof. Edwin E. Witte, economist of the University of Wisconsin faculty. Professor Witte has been rather active in Wisconsin politics as a La Follette progressive and has advanced ideas along the lines on which he is now working.

One of the main points of the program is the gradual decentralization of industry and this has been got under way already through the establishment of homestead projects in several localities. The purpose is to remove thousands of workers from tenement districts in large cities to areas where their standard of living could be raised. Officials believe that greater economic security will result through home ownership with small tracts of land.

There is now under consideration a related plan designed to offer to farmers who have suffered severely from the drouth a haven in Alaska. Jacob Baker, assistant chief of the federal emergency relief administration, has just completed a survey of a million acres of fertile land in the Mantanuska valley and has been discussing with Gov. John Troy the feasibility of taking 2,500 farm families up there as a federal colony.

SHARP criticism of the tender handling of deportable aliens by the Department of Labor has brought results, following the disclosure that when President Roosevelt recognized Russia no arrangements were made for the deportation of Russian Reds. To straighten out this situation Secretary Perkins has called back into service Walter W. Husband, a Vermont Republican who was assistant secretary of labor under Presidents Hoover and Coolidge. Only a month or two ago he was dropped to make room for Arthur Altmeyer of Wisconsin. Mr. Husband has been made a special assistant to Secretary Perkins and may be sent to Moscow.

WILLIAM LANGER, deposed as governor of North Dakota because of his conviction on federal charges of conspiring to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers, and who was re-nominated for governor by the Republicans, has withdrawn from the race. The Republican central committee promptly selected Mrs. Langer to head the ticket, and if she wins, the victory will be hailed as a vindication of her husband—just as Jim Ferguson of Texas once was "vindicated" by the election of his wife. Mrs. Langer, a member of a family socially prominent in New York, has never before taken part in politics. She is a home-loving woman and the mother of four daughters. Her opponent in the fall election will be Thomas H. Moodie, a Williston newspaper man who was nominated by the Democrats.

PAUL MAY, Belgian ambassador to the United States, died in a Washington hospital following an abdominal operation. Mr. May was a veteran diplomat and had held the post in Washington since April, 1931. He was a man of engaging personality.

MARTIAL law in Minneapolis, decreed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson because of rioting incidental to the strike of teamsters there, proved obnoxious to almost everybody and both the trucking firms and their 7,000 striking drivers asked for its dissolution. At the same time Adjutant General Walsh announced that the "insurrection" had been suppressed. Still the governor declined to withdraw the state troops. Additional trucks were given military permits to operate, and a ban against those in interstate commerce was revoked because its legality was in doubt. Beer trucks, however, were removed from the privileged list and were forbidden use of the streets on the ground that they did not furnish a necessary service.

At a mass meeting of union laborers the leaders demanded the withdrawal of the troops, the secretary of the truck drivers' union charging that the soldiers were "little more than strike-breakers."

Governor Olson's reply to this was to have the strikers' headquarters raided and their three leaders arrested. This naturally enraged the truck drivers and there was considerable violence.

Notwithstanding all this, the federal mediators, Father Haas and E. J. Dunningan, were hopeful of bringing about a peaceful agreement in the near future.

Riots in Kohler Village, Wis., in which two men were killed, led Gov. A. G. Schemedeman to place the community under martial control, and 600 members of the National Guard were sent there. During the riot the police and deputies used tear gas bombs and blank cartridges and where these failed to disperse the mob, they opened fire with loaded shells. The officer commanding the Guardsmen ordered the disbanding of the force of special deputies and permitted the strikers to resume peaceful picketing of the Kohler plant.

Longshoremen of the Pacific coast ended their two-month long strike and returned to their jobs in all the ports, as did the marine workers. Pending arbitration by the federal board, stevedores will be employed by employer-controlled hiring halls under supervision of observers representing the board. Control of the hiring halls was the chief issue in the strike and is still to be settled by the arbitrators, along with the questions of increased wages, shorter working hours and improved conditions.

GEORGE N. PEEK, President Roosevelt's special adviser on foreign trade, announced that in an effort to recapture some of America's markets abroad the so-called Second Export-Import bank was ready to finance American shipments to any country in the world.

Hitherto this second bank has dealt only with Cuban trade, while the first bank was created to handle Russian business. Thus far the Russian bank has been moribund because Russia has failed to pay her war debts to this country.

Short term, intermediate, and long term credit will be offered to American shippers who need financing to push through deals abroad, Peek said. He defined short term credits as those of less than 180 days, intermediate credits as those maturing in 180 days to 12 months, and long term credits as those with maturities between one and five years.

SENATOR HUEY P. LONG and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans were having another lively fight in the southern city. Governor Allen, one of Long's henchmen, mobilized 500 of the state troops and seized the registration office and files, and the soldiers also were ordered to search out the city's red light district and gambling houses. The mayor increased his police forces to 1,400 and for a time there was prospect of "civil war."

Walmsley said the "moral crusade" was just a "smoke screen" to conceal the senator's real purpose of taking over the city government and influencing the primary election in September, in which both he and Long are supporting rival candidates.

JAPAN'S hopes for naval equality with Great Britain and the United States were dashed by a frank statement by Secretary of the Navy Swanson to the effect that, in his personal opinion, while the United States might favor a slash of 20 per cent in naval armaments, it would strongly oppose any realignment of existing naval ratios for the principal powers.

"I take the same position I always have," Secretary Swanson said. "The naval powers met in London and distributed naval strength as they thought just and right. Naval strength is relative. If we abandon the ratios there is no telling where we shall go."

"EXPLORER," the huge balloon constructed to carry three army officers far into the stratosphere, made a brave start from near Rapid City, S. D., rose to a height of 60,000 feet and then came to grief. Great rips appeared in the fabric of the bag and it came down rapidly and erratically, falling with its gondola 12 miles from Holdrege, Neb. Maj. W. E. Kepner, Capt. Orvil Anderson and Capt. Albert Stevens "bailed out" and with the aid of their parachutes landed unhurt. But all their expensive and elaborate scientific equipment, with the exception of the spectograph, was destroyed when the gondola crashed. The spectograph had been hung outside and floated to earth on a separate small parachute.

Famished Cattle Find Water and Grass

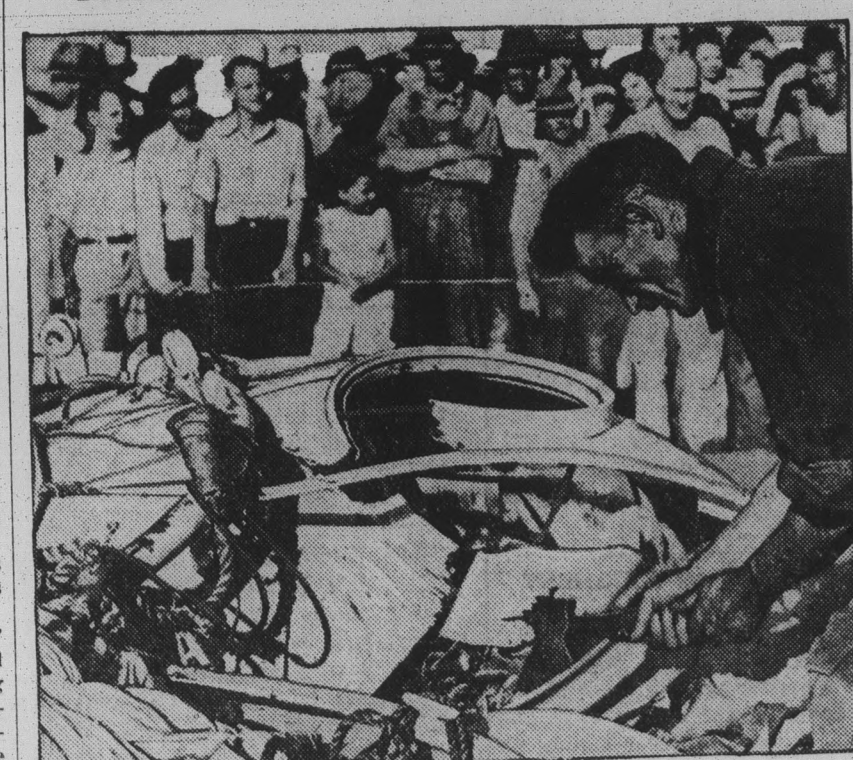

Western cattle branded with the letters of the Emergency Relief administration, after they had been bought by the government from farmers whose farms are now almost waterless, are driven to an island in the middle of the Savannah river, near Augusta, Ga., where there are 300 acres of pastureland. It must feel great to them to get back to water and real green grass again.

Hunting Stamp to Help Restore Waterfowl

Authorized by the recent congress, the new federal hunting stamp will be issued shortly by the Post Office department. The photograph shows Stanley P. Young, head of the division of game management (left), and Col. H. P. Sheldon, of the bureau of biological survey, examining the original drawing for the new stamp which was made by J. N. "Ding" Darling, who was a nationally known cartoonist long before he recently became chief of the biological survey. The sale of the stamps will provide funds to help conserve ducks and geese and every one over sixteen years of age who hunts migratory waterfowl is required to purchase one of the new dollar stamps.

Tries to Save Stratosphere Records

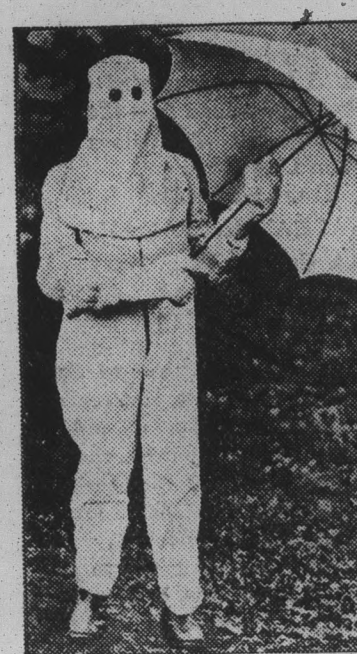

Capt. Albert W. Stevens, who leaped to safety with the two other members of the stratosphere balloon Explorer when it fell, is shown chopping away parts of the gondola in the effort to save some of the scientific instruments. However, they were destroyed by the crash.

That Body of Yours

By
JAMES W. BARTON, M. D.

The Liver and Mental Ailments

SOME years ago the superintendent of a large mental hospital discovered that a patient who had been an inmate for two years (with no sign of any change) began to improve shortly after some bad teeth were removed, and left the hospital perfectly well mentally two months later.

Immediately dentists were brought in and the removal of dead and infected teeth gave such satisfactory results that this institution attained the best record on the continent for the percentage of cures in proportion to the number of cases entering the hospital.

As the underlying cause of a number of mental cases was thus shown to be due to poison in the system, nose and throat specialists were brought in who removed infected tonsils and corrected other conditions in the nose and throat, resulting in the cure of a considerable number of cases.

This superintendent went further in his efforts to remove poison from the system, by requiring the attendants to see that patients had intestinal movements daily and in some cases ordered ordinary enemas, and in other cases, high enemas, or colonic irrigations, as they are called.

A point, not fully recognized by most of us, is that one of the important jobs done by the liver is that of removing poisons from the blood. If the liver fails to do this work properly, then there is that tired, lazy feeling that is caused by any poisonous waste. Thus we speak of a lazy liver as an organ that makes us "quitters."

Dr. A. Lingjaerde, Oslo, found that disturbances of the liver were very frequent in a common type of mental ailment, and that it was due to a large extent to too much waste in the large bowel. The liver simply could not take care of this large amount of poison.

As you know the liver tries to prevent constipation by manufacturing bile and sending it down the intestine. If this bile flows freely and sends wastes out of the bowel, then naturally there will not be as much waste (poison) in the blood for the liver to remove.

If we would keep the liver active by bending exercises, forward or to the side, with knees straight, many of us would have clearer minds.

The Cheerful Temperament

THE cheerful temperament is a priceless possession, for when all is said, happiness is alone, the greatest or highest gift of our existence; wealth cannot purchase it, nor health insure it.

These words in the Medical Practitioner by Dr. E. A. Barton are worthy of our most serious consideration, because if you have all, and have not happiness, life is really a failure.

Certainly wealth cannot purchase happiness because, to the busy individual, wealth is a source of great anxiety at all times, and to the idle individual wealth is the source of temptation and trouble.

As a matter of fact, while it cannot be said in every case that health can insure constant happiness, it can be said that real happiness cannot be insured to you without health.

We are told that "happiness depends for the most part on our inner consciousness, our outlook on life, our faith in the future, and above all, on the good companionship of our fellow men."

I believe we will all agree with this, but nevertheless our inner consciousness, our outlook on life, our faith in the future and the good companionship of our fellow men depend to a very great extent upon our health.

I have more than once quoted the saying of Chesterfield "an attack of indigestion, a sleepless night and a rainy morning will make a coward of a man who would otherwise be a hero."

The difference between the coward and the hero then was that attack of indigestion which prevented sleep, aggravated by the gloomy morning.

If you live a normal life and are in no way conscious of having a body—no headache, stomach ache, no pain anywhere, good appetite, able to go anywhere on your feet, no breathlessness as you go about, get a good night's sleep—you have life's greatest asset, life's greatest boon.

This doesn't mean that you will always be happy, or even happy most of the time, but it does mean that you have the greatest thing needed to make you happy, that is good health.

If things come into your life that cause unhappiness, good health gives you the greatest possible help in withstanding this unhappiness, because it gives you a hopeful outlook on life, a real faith in the future, and the enjoyment of the good companionship of your fellow men.

Many Animals Diseased

Many wild animals suffer from diseases similar in effect to the common distemper of dogs. Two forms of this disease at times have been serious impediments in fox farming. Tularemia, widely publicized as rabbit fever, is known to occur in a great many wild animals, including the ground-squirrel, muskrat, coyote, cat, foxes, sheep and even in certain game birds.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

CHEWINK IS GRATEFUL

FROM his perch in the top of a little tree in a thicket on the edge of the Green Forest, Chewink the Towhee watched Reddy Fox out of sight, then called softly: "To-who! To-who! Chewink! Chewink! All is safe now Peter Rabbit. Come out and talk with me and let me tell you how grateful I am to you for saving my life."

Chewink flew down to the ground and Peter Rabbit crept out of the bramble-tangle where he had been hiding. "It wasn't anything," declared Peter. "I saw Reddy and I knew you didn't, so of course I gave the alarm. You would have done the same thing for me. Do you know, Chewink, I've wondered a great deal about you."

"What have you wondered about me?" asked Chewink.

"I've wondered what family you belong to," replied Peter.

Chewink chuckled. "I belong to a big family," said he. "I belong to the biggest family among the birds. It is the Finch and Sparrow family. There are a lot of us and a good many of us don't know that Rosebreast the Grosbeak and Glory the Cardinal are members of my family."

"I didn't know it," replied Peter. "but if you say it is so I suppose it must be so. It is easier to believe that than that you are related to the Sparrows."

"Nevertheless I am," retorted Chewink.

"What were you scratching for when I first saw you?" asked Peter.

"Oh, worms and bugs that hide under the leaves," replied Chewink carelessly. "You have no idea how many of them hide under dead leaves."

"Do you eat anything else?" asked Peter.

"Berries and wild fruits in season," replied Chewink. "I'm very fond of them. They make a variety in the bill of fare."

"I've noticed that I seldom see you in a tree-top," remarked Peter.

"I like the ground better," replied

Chewink. "I spend more of my time on the ground than anywhere else."

"I suppose that means that you nest on the ground," ventured Peter.

Chewink nodded. "Of course," said he. "As a matter of fact I've got a nest in this very thicket. Mrs. Towhee is on it right now, and I suspect she is worrying and anxious to know what happened over here when you warned me about Reddy Fox. I think I must go over and set her mind at rest."

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Is it true that the average weight of a woman's clothing when she is dressed to go out in the evening weighs 14 ounces?

Yours truly,

N. CREDIBLE.

Answer: Yes. But that is only temporary, as a manufacturer has just announced an invention which makes shoes much lighter.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have been ill and my doctor advises "chicken livers." Do you think they are healthy?

Yours truly,

EIFELE ALLIN.

Answer: I never heard of a chicken complaining of its liver.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am very fond of flowers and have just planted an entire bed of "Saliva Bulbs" for next summer. I should like to plant another kind of flower that would make a pretty border for my "Saliva" blooms. What do you suggest?

Sincerely,

ANN ASTOR.

Answer: Inasmuch as you have an entire bed of "Saliva" why not surround it with a border of "Spittoon-las"?

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a married man, have been married only three months. I am a good hardworking man, give my wife everything she asks for, lots of spending money, lots of clothes, in fact, everything. Here's what I want to know: Last night I arrived home and found my wife in another man's arms. As I give my wife everything, how do you account for me finding her kissing another man?

Yours truly,

I. M. MADD.

Answer: Inasmuch as you do so much for your wife, the only way I can account for your discovering your wife in another man's arms is that you came home sooner than she expected.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have been in ill health for some time. The doctor told me to take some IRON. Do you think he advised me correctly?

Yours truly,

DELA WARE.

Answer—Your doctor's advice is very good, if taken properly. I knew a man once who was sick and his doctor told him to take some IRON. He took a stove and was arrested.

The Solitaire Bird

The solitaire (Pezophaps solitaria) was a bird allied to the dodo and formerly inhabiting Rodriguez. It became extinct about 1761. The male stood about 2 feet 9 inches high and was brownish gray in color, the female being brown with a whitish breast. The male bore a knob of bone on each wing and used this as a weapon. The solitaire was flightless. Its food consisted of seeds and leaves, and a single egg was laid in a heap of palm leaves and incubated by both parents.

SHE would be a better player If she could just leave behind All the dear domestic problems That perplex her loving mind. If she could forget the children And the naughty things they did— But that's just what she remembers! She forgets the no-trump bid!

If she didn't have her mind on Mrs. Johnson's lovely gown; If she wouldn't bother listing All the things she'll buy in town, She would be a better player! Now she's making up her face, And she's sort of absent-minded As she trumps her partner's ace!

She would be a better player! She describes each dress that's worn! The refreshments? She could make 'em. And her husband laughs in scorn, Though there's humor in his laughter As he hears his bonny lass When he bids "Two hearts!" say: "Partner! You'll excuse me! . . . I'll just pass!"

If she'd concentrate five minutes, What a player she would be, But she must describe her diet, And she shows she went to see. She would be a better player, Dad opines (and he is human!) If she'd keep her mind on contract And forget she is a woman! (Copyright.)—WNU Service.

Egg Salad Sandwich. Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one cupful of milk and three tablespoonfuls of tapioca, cook until clear, stirring frequently. Cool. Combine four tablespoonfuls of chopped celery, four hard cooked eggs finely chopped, two tablespoonfuls each of sweet pickles, chopped and liquid from the pickles, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and the tapioca mixture. Cool before spreading.

Sirup for Drinks. Take one gallon of boiling water and twelve pounds of sugar. Stir until thoroughly dissolved. Keep in sterilized bottles. MOVE TO CHECK OVERPLAYING OF INSANITY PLEAS

The American people have long been convinced that the insanity plea in criminal courts is decidedly overworked. It is gratifying and not a little surprising, therefore, says the St. Paul Dispatch, to learn that the psychiatrists, whose science has contributed most to the furthering of the insanity plea, are now making an attempt to close this loophole in the law.

At a recent annual meeting of the American Psychiatric association in New York a committee report was read advocating radical reforms in legal and penal procedure in capital cases in which a plea of insanity had been entered by the defendant. It was recommended that "the judge shall eliminate all evidence of the mental condition of the defendant except such evidence as makes the mental disease so obvious a lay jury can understand it." Time and again juries have been mystified by the clinical subtleties and technicalities of insanity pleas in criminal trials. On too many occasions the twelve good men and true have been overwhelmed by psychological jargon and have permitted justice to be cheated.

To the ordinary run of citizens who make up jury panels there are mentally only two kinds of people, the normal and the crazy. The various grades and degrees of mental and nervous disorders which is the psychiatrist's field he comprehends not at all. When an insanity plea is entered the jury merely wants to know whether the accused is or is not responsible for his acts. Keeping such evidence in an understandable form will help the juries and put a limit on the abuse of insanity pleas.

Giant Bison Fossils

A species of bison three times as large as those in existence today roamed the western plains during the Pleistocene geologic period. This is the conclusion reached by Dr. C. L. Camp, director of the University of California museum of paleontology, after fossil remains of one of these giant animals found on the Jim Day ranch in Shasta county, Calif., were sent to the museum for examination. They were discovered by a thirteen-year-old boy who in attempting to pick up a rock to throw at some sheep grabbed hold of what proved to be the tip of the bison's horn which protruded a few inches above the ground.

GARMENTS OF GLADNESS

If we could all remember that cheerfulness is a magnet which draws friends, perhaps more of us would cheer up and take larger doses of the medicine of human kindness and clothe our disposition with the garments of gladness.

We need to keep constant vigilance over ourselves, unless we stray away into our mental loft and break down the human structure. The worst job with the alarming thousands is overcoming a grouch or a complex that results in inferiority and hatred. People are troubled with a grouch at one time or another—a few, all the time. There is good reason for most of the failures of the world today. There is too much vitality foolishly used and mankind is made to suffer for his error.

The pace of modern civilization requires an abundance of energy, a keen mind and a perpetually pleasing disposition. These qualities do not always come of their own volition; they usually have to be gained thru consistent cultivation and determined power from within. A firm resolve, religiously carried out is a sure retreat for the largest returns. Mark Twain's humor sometimes is as rich in sentiment as it is funny. He once said, "Let us endeavor to so live that when we come to die, even the undertaker will be sorry."

For one who has the talent and the faculty for putting it to good use, President Roosevelt has no peer. He is a master in the art of friendship and cordial expression and it is all preceeded with a smile "that never wears off". His cruise of good cheer in Atlantic and Pacific waters, just closed, is a remarkable one of most historical significance. In most every port where the Houston tied up, the president combined pleasure and business—diplomatic business pertaining to insular affairs and with victory for the sociable welfare of United States. It can be said that he has advanced friendship with all those whom he met, under an alluring atmosphere of enthusiastic people. As a far-reaching purpose, it may be said that his Hawaiian visit established a peace policy that may take claim over the whole Pacific and Orient. It's safe to say that the President's sea and land journey of inspection and vacation will be both internationally and nationally known for some time. The first half of it registered some acts of international neighborliness which merit and will receive the praise of those who earnestly desire the advancement of world friendship.

The greatest asset to any country is its climate. California has proven this fact, and millions have invested in health thru our climatic medicine, which equals what no physician can prescribe. While we have a coveted low death rate, it is claimed that New Zealand is about the healthiest place in the world to live, because its inhabitants have the lowest death rates and longest lives of any people living. Come to think of it, our tempered salt air is much the same as New Zealand. It is, therefore, significant to remind you all who are seeking to solve the riddle of lengthening the life span, that you need not go out of California. Customarily, we judge a land by its commercial advantages, forgetting that the greatest enjoyment does not come thru money but health and peace of mind. California affords such a privilege.

No part of the human frame should be allowed to remain dormant for any length of time. The danger is with the blood stream—the life of body, mind and soul. No sooner is activity neglected when nature releases her hold. We must be active to be healthy. Exercise, food and habits make for bodily fitness. We ride in automobiles when we should take from three to six miles of oxygen on the hoof. We ride most every day—why not walk every day? If we want that physical fitness, join the army of dieticians, and athletes and form the habit of restful hours. This is the only course whereby one can round up a 100 percent health efficiency. To practice the opposite is habitual and general physical degeneration and a premature grave.

We are "go-getters," that is, we Americans are seemingly going somewhere every hour of the day. What we are pursuing or where we are going or getting is quite another thing. We are both idle and busy and many times accomplish very little in our go-getting speed. The go-getter speed. The go-getter has earned the name of accomplishing what he goes after, even at risk and hurt of body. Most of us seem to head in on the wrong direction because we gain so little at the expense of our vitality. A deep, calm, peaceful tranquility is mighty in our makeup, if we but know how to apply it. It is well to remember that happiness and success in life do not depend upon our circumstances, but on ourselves.

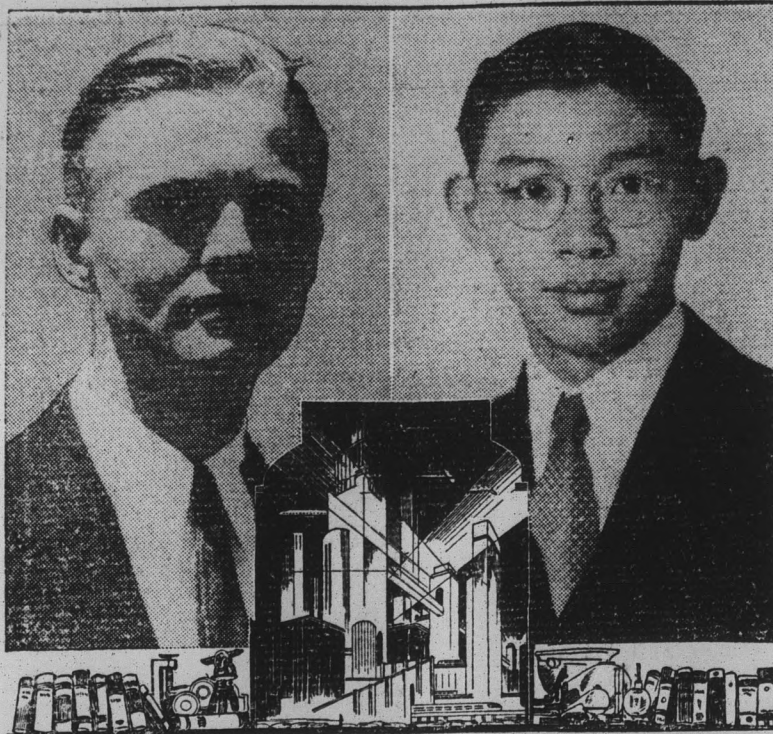

Contrary to the rumor that the young man of the future is facing the strange problem of employment or position, a noted leader in business affairs claims that unlimited opportunities are open for the trained, intelligent "hard worker", with more chances for advancement to his credit than at any time in history. It is quite true that the energetic person who is seeking a place in the world's marts, need not be idle very long. It always requires the energetic spirit with plenty of willingness to climb the ladder of success. This has been the rule for many centuries, and it never fails.

Next Tuesday is the state election primaries, and the responsibility is very serious with each one who votes, to be familiar with the men of your choice. We must remember our obligation as a citizen. We need men in office today who will stand the hard test of strictest honesty, with a wisdom, poise and ability to achieve success for those who help to elect him to office. We are built and are governed by law and order, which is the hope of land and home, but it should be recognized also that men in office are the makers of laws, and that they are more important than measures and charters.

Young Seers Win College Education

For their ideas on the world as it will be 30 years from now, Dana Adams Schmidt of Los Angeles (left) and Monroe Jang of Marysville have been awarded the two $2,000 University scholarships in Bank of America's statewide essay competition on America's development in the next 30 years. Thousands of young Californians vied for the awards. Schmidt will continue at Pomona College, where he is about to enter his sophomore year, and Jang has elected to attend the University of California.

A Pomona College freshman and a Marysville High School student were announced today as winners of the $2,000 scholarships endowed by Bank of America for the two best essays submitted in a statewide competition in which thousands of boys and girls submitted essays.

In competition with essayists of 18 years or under in Los Angeles County and the San Francisco Bay Area, Dana Adams Schmidt, 18, of 405 West Adams Street, Los Angeles, was awarded a $2,000 scholarship for his essay entitled "The World Thirty Years From Now."

Monroe Jang, 17, son of an American-born Chinese merchant of Marysville, was adjudged the winner for all of California outside the two principal metropolitan areas. His essay on "Economic and Social Advancements" won him more than two dollars a word.

The scholarship competition was sponsored by Bank of America in an endeavor to determine the trend of thought of young Californians, to discover what plans youth holds in store for the future of the United States, and to stimulate constructive thought. Contestants were invited to submit their ideas on "America in 1964" in the form of essays of 1,000 words or less.

The scholarships were awarded by a committee of judges composed of Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, President of the University of California; Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, President of Leland Stanford Jr. University; and Dr. Rufus B. von KleinSmid, President of the University of Southern California.

The two scholarships will be presented to Jang and Schmidt at the State Fair in Sacramento in the first week of September, by A. P. Giannini, founder of Bank of America and of the Giannini Foundation at the University of California.

In all, Bank of America is making 414 awards in its survey of youthful thought. Essayists whose efforts won the commendation of the judges received a total of $10,000 in scholarships and cash awards.

Young Jang is a product of the California public school system and has already distinguished himself in his school career, having won a high school scholarship offered by the California Scholarship Federation. He has selected the University of California for his Alma Mater and will enter in 1935. His scholarship will be held in trust for him until that time by the bank, and thus through interest accumulation he will actually receive more than $2,000.

Hints for Homemakers
By Jane Rogers

MODERN mohair velvet upholstery as used in automobile or in furniture contains from 20,000 to 40,000 pile fibres to the square inch. This is important to both housewife and car-owner since it makes the upholstery extremely easy to clean. A whisk-broom or vacuum cleaner will remove dust or dirt, since it remains loose between the pile fibres. Grease spots and stains are broken up by the countless tiny pile fibres, and ordinary cleaning fluids will remove them. The cleaning should be done by starting well outside the area of the spot and then working in a circular motion toward the center. By repeating this process, no circle of diluted grease will be left.

Chadwick Captures Pacific Beach Murderer

Of all the stories of San Diego's crimes related by Richard W. Chadwick, this is perhaps the most sordid and terrible. It is because of his close contact and keen observance of criminals and his clear understanding of the motives which go to cause crimes that Mr. Chadwick is in a splendid position to know from where to start in the solution of crime. He bases his campaign for the office of Sheriff upon just this qualification.

In the year 1925 the fire department of La Jolla was called to extinguish a blaze at a small cottage in Pacific Beach; they arrived at the scene of the fire and by their usual efficient work soon had it under complete control and put out. Upon entering the smoldering ruins, they were amazed and horrified to find the partly consumed body of a man lying on the floor and partly covered by charred bed clothing. Inquiry among the neighbors revealed the fact that it was the body of one of the two occupants of the little shack, the other and younger occupant was missing. By further inquiry, firemen found that the car of the dead man was missing also. So suspicious were these circumstances that police headquarters was called. Two officers were sent from La Jolla and Chadwick was sent from the detective division at the Central Station. Upon his arrival and pending the arrival of the coroner, Chadwick made a careful survey of the situation. He found the contents of the old man's dresser drawers strewn about the house and his personal effects scattered. He also found evidence of inflammable liquid, but most important and pointing directly to foul play was the unmistakable evidence of a gunshot wound which had torn the abdomen of the victim before it had been burned. Chadwick obtained from neighbors a good description of the missing young man, who was a relative of the deceased, and also a description of the missing car. An autopsy the next day confirmed Chadwick's findings; the man had been killed by the charge from a shot gun and the fire had been set after death. Chadwick made further inquiry as to the home life of the two occupants of the burned house and soon found that their association had been marked by frequent quarrels. He set about an intensive search for the missing man, had the garages checked for trace of the missing car, and notified out of town authorities to be on the lookout for him. For several days, no trace of either car or man was found. Chadwick was by that time well convinced that the man had not left town, but was hiding somewhere in the city or nearby. He got a tip from a service station near Five Points, that the car had been seen near there and immediately went to that location. After two days of intensive searching, and inquiry he located the car in an auto court near that vicinity. He waited for the driver to enter the car and when he had satisfied himself that it was the man he wanted, he took him into custody for questioning; in the car, Chadwick found a fully loaded twelve gauge shotgun. The young man appeared much surprised when the matter of his relative's death was brought up; he swore that he knew nothing about it and that he had left the house they occupied a day before the fire had occurred. Questioned about the shotgun he claimed it had been purchased the day before he was arrested. A check of the store where he said he had bought the gun proved his statement to be false. He had bought the gun the day before the murder and fire. In his possession was found the billfold belonging to the dead man, and other small articles including a last will and testament of the deceased. A system of adroit questioning and checking used by the officers soon brought out even without the suspect's knowing he had divulged it, the information that he had trouble with the older man over money matters, that they were on bad terms and that recently money had been refused and he was very

ON BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

An idea of the gigantic task that faces the State Board of Equalization during the next few months was given today by the local chairman of the committee for the re-election of H. G. Cattell as Board member for Southern California. Between now and the first part of next year, he said, the Board, will be obliged to assess utility property in the State valued in excess of $1,000,000,000. Appraisal of this property by the new Constitutional provision for taxing utilities, which goes into effect on January 1. The new law abandons the present method, in existence since 1910, of separating the sources of state and local revenue, and returns utility property to city and county tax rolls, to be taxed in the same manner as other property. To substitute for Mr. Cattell at this time on the Equalization Board any man of inexperience and one lacking in technical knowledge of tax problems would be to invite confusion that would be disastrous to the public interest, it was declared.

William T. Hart Says
Merriam Should Win

Believes Him To Be Man of Wisdom and Strength

"I do not believe it is wise to experiment with inexperience, hence I am supporting Governor Frank F. Merriam, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, at the primaries August 28," William T. Hart of Carlsbad, prominent county developer, said yesterday.

"The happiness of 6,000,000 Californians—the safety of property—the welfare of all—the sane, economical handling of the state government the next four years—hinges upon the selection of a governor who will be a man of wisdom, a man of great strength of character, a man of proven capabilities, a man of broad humanitarian understanding, and a man with a sensible plan to meet the state's problems.

"It is a dangerous time, even for the most humble of us. We dare not be misled by high-sounding but theoretical and impracticable panaceas of inexperienced political sensationalists, but must choose a man of judgment, achievement in public office and decision who has a workable program.

"For 16 years, I have watched Governor Merriam under the acid test of public service, building a wealth of experience, wisdom and knowledge of the state's needs.

Thruout that time he stood forth as a consistent and staunch champion of greater economies in government, as soundly progressive, as a defender of the weak, as a warm friend of the veteran and as a leader in California's most wisely enacted legislation.

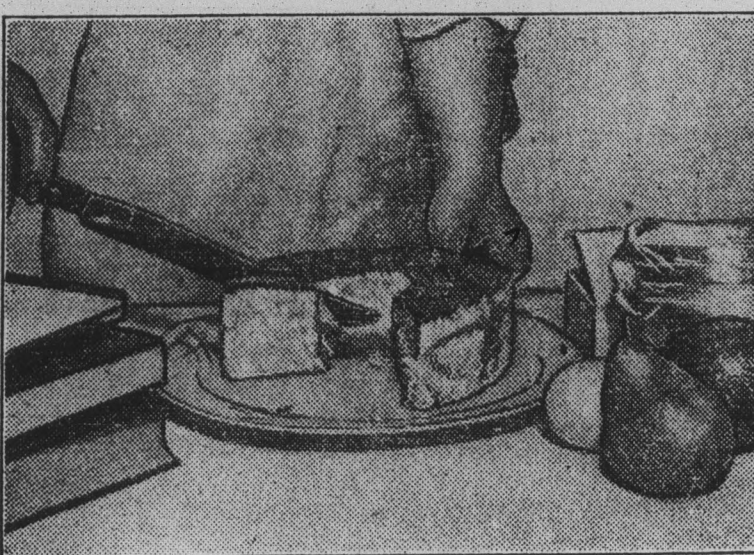

"Governor Merriam's conservation plans show him to be an executive with his feet on the ground, well acquainted with the state and its needs, and with specific ideas of how to meet its problems.

"He offers no cure-all for present difficulties, proposes no program for the immediate alleviation of human distress, but does suggest a group of concrete, practical measures which everybody knows will work and which should appeal strongly to the sober common sense of the voters.

"He promises aid to taxpayers, farmers and orchardists; to extend the time on tax bills; to further a back-to-the-land movement; to give relief to unemployed; to eliminate useless state governmental departments, and to give the people a sound economical administration.

"In consequence, I believe that Governor Merriam's retention in office is essential to the future welfare of California and all her people."

Well Balanced, Tasty Luncheon
Can Cure Classroom Drowsiness

By Jane Rogers

NOW that the younger members of the family have returned to school, the subject of the children's lunch becomes highly important. Teachers, who have to contend with their pupils' afternoon drowsiness, will agree with this.

Whether the lunch is eaten at home, or carried to school with the books, it should be well balanced and nourishing. As vegetables cannot travel in the lunch box, lettuce in some of the sandwiches and fresh fruits must help supply the deficiency. If the children eat at home, fresh vegetables should be a part of the lunch menu.

A liberal amount of sweet should also be included, because sugar supplies the quick energy which the youngsters need during their afternoon work. Cookies or cake or some other solid "dessert" which contains sugar, should be a part of the packed lunch, to satisfy the sweet tooth, which, no doubt, is a natural recognition of the child's need for energy foods. For home consumption there are many delightful desserts which children love. Here is one of them:

Snow Pudding

1 tablespoon gelatine 1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup cold water 3 egg whites beaten
1 cup boiling water stiff
1 cup sugar

Soak gelatine in cold water, dissolve in boiling water, add sugar and lemon juice, strain and cool. When thick enough to show mark of the spoon, beat until frothy, add egg whites and continue beating until mixture is stiff enough to stand alone. Pipe in sherbet glasses and serve with cold soft custard.

Acquiring a Bigger Sense of Things

OBSERVING the state of affairs in the common walks of life, one must admit that many of the troubles which beset mankind arise from the small sense of things entertained by the majority of individuals. We find people living in cramped and narrow circumstances, from which they make no effort to extricate themselves, because their sense of home has not expanded beyond limited ideals. Others regard as tedious and monotonous their tasks, because they have as yet only a little grasp of their native spiritual capabilities. Then, what a very small sense has mankind in general of what constitutes supply! We regard money as our supply, believing that without it we cannot live. But how limited, unstable, and fluctuating is the value of money, and how poor its dividends for those who cling fearfully and greedily to it as if it were a vital necessity!

How narrow, too, is our sense of life! We subscribe in the generally accepted belief that life includes old age which is the forerunner of death. Nevertheless, this false sense of things need no longer be accepted as real and inevitable, for as everything has its starting point in thought, the mental expansion can begin at once.

As a bird's powerful wings bear it upward, so right thought will carry the thinker far when it is turned in the right direction. But if thought is kept chained down to a material basis, where it has no room to spread, expand, and soar, it follows that the thinker will remain on the same level. Our need then is to free our thought, lift it above the contemplation of life as merely physical, and set it winging into contemplation of the great spiritual truths about God and man to be found in the Bible. For it is a fact that all the littleness and limitations common to human experience arise from a false sense of God and man who is made in His likeness.

Even though the Bible depicts God as loving, good, wise, and unchangeable, many who have desired to know Him have not learned to feel Him as a mighty power and presence in their lives. Yet this right sense should be realized, for Christ Jesus said, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and the mighty works which he did were accomplished through his complete understanding of God as the ever present Father, caring for His children.

Who ever had so boundless a sense of things as Jesus? Even at the age of twelve he felt his God-given ability to talk and reason about spiritual things. Later, at the beginning of his ministry, the Master turned the water into wine at the marriage feast. The human needs of five thousand hungry people in a desert place did not dismay him, and the food set before them was abundant. When called upon to heal the sick and raise the dead, he did not bestow upon them a partial recovery, but health, activity, and freedom. And to all who follow in this way, Christ Jesus offers for all time full and complete salvation and life without end.

To Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, confidence in God as the vital power, the sovereign presence, the Father-Mother Mind, outweighed all other influences in her life; and through her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," she has placed this beautiful, practical, and satisfying sense of God within the reach of all mankind.

On page 520 of Science and Health we find this profound statement: "Unfathomable Mind is expressed. The depth, breadth, height, might, majesty, and glory of Infinite Love fill all space. That is enough." As, to the material senses, the sun pours its light and heat upon all the earth, blessing and heartening mankind, so to the spiritual senses of those who gain a right concept of God, comes the glorious assurance of the all-pervading presence and power of the infinite Mind, which is Love, ceaselessly pouring forth its divine ideas for men to recognize and utilize. Goodness, wisdom, purity, loving-kindness, justice, mercy, faith, hope, courage, assurance—all these and every other spiritual quality existing in infinite Mind belong to man by reflection, for he is the idea of God, the expression of God's being.

Let all who find themselves held in cramped and narrow places by the limited sense of things they have hitherto entertained, begin at once to turn thought in the right direction. As the glories of infinite Mind are steadfastly contemplated, their concept of God will grow and enlarge, and with it will come a joyful sense of freedom and power through the spiritual ability to reject the false beliefs of limitation, lack, and discord. One's daily life and occupations will take on nobler outlines. Instead of the dread of helpless old age there will be the confident expectation of added wisdom, harmony, and fruition; and so the ceaseless incoming of Love's spiritual ideas to human consciousness, and their faithful utilization, will be manifested in our experience in abundant supply.—The Christian Science Monitor.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counselor? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever." These words of Paul's to the Romans are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Mind" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Among the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon are the words from Matthew: "And when they were come to the multitude, there came to him a certain man, kneeling down to him, and saying, Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for oftentimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water. . . . And Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour. Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief."

A correlative passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states, "When Christ changes a belief of sin or of sickness into a better belief, then belief melts into spiritual understanding, and sin, disease, and death disappear."

MISSION BEACH

Friends Desire Election Judge Phil Smith

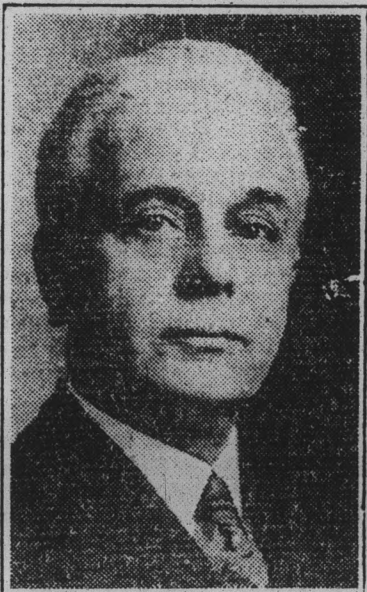

Early in June when Judge Philip Smith announced his candidacy for re-election to Justice Court three, he greatly pleased his many Ocean Beach friends, who believe that he has been sincere in conducting his office and made some very constructive achievements and recommendations for new laws.

He organized the juvenile traffic school, which teaches young drivers to respect the rights of others, and he is also the author of the proposed Auto Death Law. In the traffic school young offenders must attend four Saturday morning sessions and study traffic ordinances and safe driving rules.

Judge Smith has been economical in conducting his office and is considered a foremost authority on traffic problems. He is a member of the San Diego public safety committee, chairman of the judicial committee of the San Diego chamber of commerce and a member of the San Diego traffic commission.

Friends and acquaintances of Judge Smith believe you can do no better than by giving him your vote on August 28.

WIFE TO CARRY ON CAMPAIGN FOR HUSBAND

Laying aside her apron and household duties, Mrs. Orpha Swope, diminutive wife of county recorder, O. M. Swope who was injured in an automobile accident August 13, has taken charge of his campaign for re-election.

"I don't know much about politics," said the quiet, little woman. "but I do know that Mr. Swope will continue as county recorder. I guess my first step will be to find out what to do."

Mrs. Swope was an overseas nurse during the war. Her only experience in politics, she admitted ruefully, was gained when she helped organize the first American Legion post in Denver.

"Mr. Swope is improving splendidly," she said. "His broken ribs and collar bone are knitting rapidly. The skull fracture proved to be minor and is giving no trouble at all. We are having a hard time keeping him in bed. The doctor says it will be only a short time until he can resume his duties."

"Everyone has been wonderful to me," her lip quivered as she said it. "I get hundreds of telephone calls a day from people who want to do something to help. You really don't know how many friends you have until you need them."

WAR VETERANS ORGANIZE FOR SINCLAIR

Los Angeles, August 18.—"The EPIC Plan provides for war veterans as it does for others—it gives them the security for the future that they believe was assured them when they returned from the service of our country."

Thus reiterated Upton Sinclair, democratic candidate for governor and exponent of the EPIC Plan, in appreciation of the strong support that is coming to him from ex-service men in California who have completed a statewide organization of veterans actively behind the EPIC principles.

"Under the EPIC Plan," Sinclair added, "every able-bodied veteran will be assured of employment. His children will be educated and he will be taken care of in the declining years of his life by a pension that will supply his needs."

"When his children have reached maturity they will find a place ready for them to carry on where they may become useful workers."

"The EPIC Plan will fulfill the post-war promises of care for disabled veterans for it will provide for him as it does for all other persons who have in some way lost their health."

Use Your Best Judgment When Voting!

Many of our readers in the past month have asked about different candidates and how they shall really vote on Tuesday next. Men who have made an effort to inform themselves say it is a difficult task. There are so many candidates that they become confused; and if they listen to a friend of the man running for office they hear nothing but good; while if they talk to someone else who favors another candidate they get bad reports about the same man.

In order to be of service to our readers and help those out who are still in doubt we should like to offer a few suggestions, given in a friendly way and for men whom we have investigated enough to believe they are honest and sincere.

For governor the choice must necessarily be within your own party, therefore vote for the most honest and most capable man you believe to be affiliated with your party.

For Lieut Governor do the same, as well as for the secretary of state, controller, treasurer and attorney general.

For member of the State Board of Equalization we find Harvey G. Cattell, incumbent, well known and highly regarded in San Diego. This is an important office and needs an experienced man.

For U. S. Senator Hiram W. Johnson is our choice, for many reasons, but principally because he is independent and will not be tied to the wrong policy.

For representative in Congress we expect the service men to vote mostly for Izac, however, George Burnham has a host of friends, through his long residence and business career in San Diego.

For the State Senate our choice is Major George B. Bowers, who has been an indefatigable worker for Mission Bay State park and all the beach districts of this county.

For assemblyman 78th district, Ralph Wallace, a young and brilliant attorney, well known locally, has our choice on the Republican ticket.

For your county central committee, take your choice.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Office No. 1, we have no choice as yet.

For same as above, Office No. 2, George Edward Acret is reported as far the best man for the common people. He has a strong following where known while Judge Ira F. Thompson's actions have been open to a good deal of criticism.

For Justice of the Superior Court, Lloyd E. Griffin, as far as we can learn has filled this place with credit to himself and is worthy of your vote for re-election.

For Justice of the Peace, office No. 1, Joe Shell has our approbation. He is not a great orator but we're going to give him our vote, for we believe he has sound judgment.

For Justice of the Peace, office No. 2, we understand Judge Daney, jr., is a good man, but John A. Hewicker, is said by his friends to be progressive, fair and most highly regarded professionally and personally.

For Justice of the Peace No. 3 our choice goes to Judge Philip Smith. By personal contact and thru friends we find him ambitious in his work, generally a credit to his profession and higher courts as a rule support his decisions.

For Justice of the Peace, No. 4, we have made no investigation and therefore offer no choice.

For City Justice, San Diego, Clarence F. Terry is reported as a mighty good man for the position.

For superintendent of public instruction, the present incumbent is said to be most desired from standpoint of experience.

County Superintendent of Schools, the race will likely be between Harold W. Baker and Ada York, incumbent. Whether we want a change or not is the question. We believe them both to be capable.

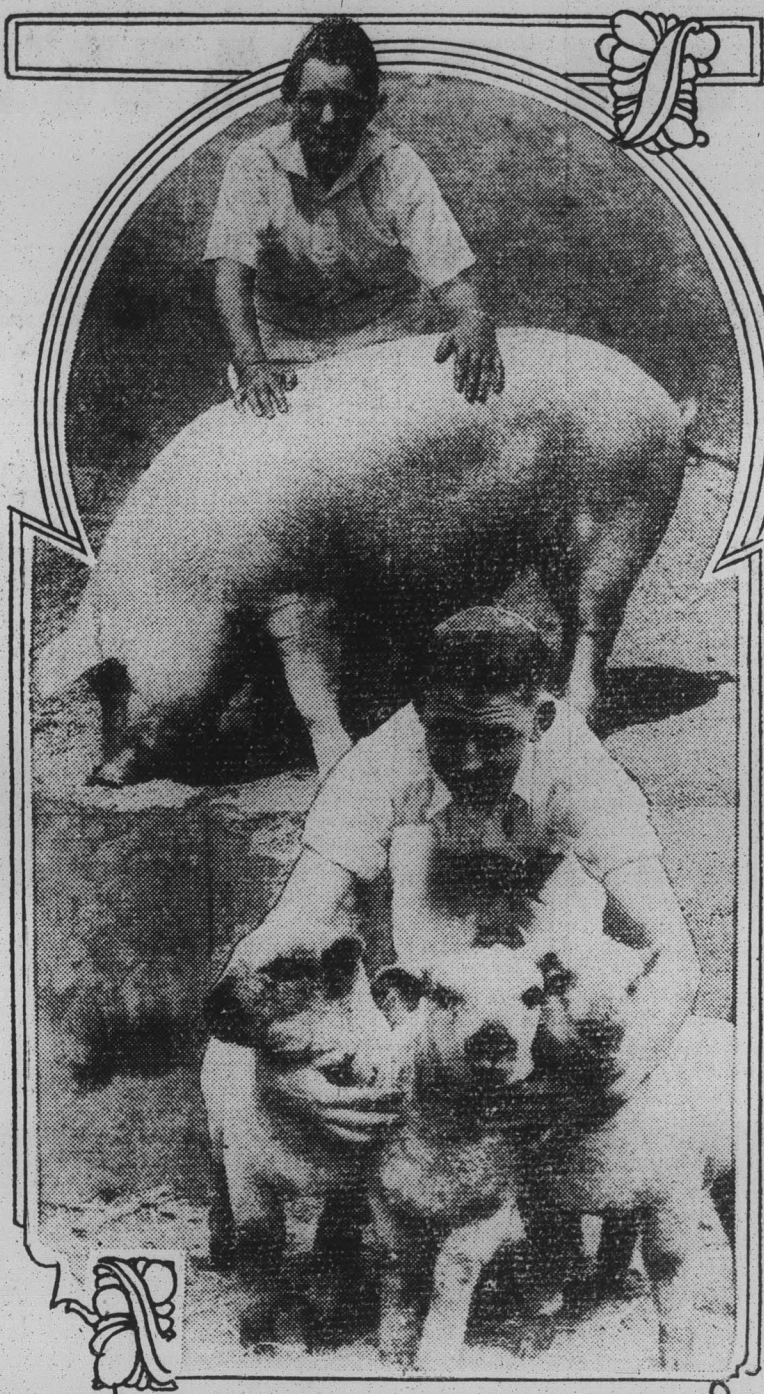

For sheriff, nine candidates and you can vote for only one. The more we learn of all men in this race the more we believe that Richard W. Chadwick, second down on the ticket, is the most desirable man for the position and would fill it better than any of the others.

For district attorney. We expect to see Thomas Whelan win, however, James H. McKinney, we regard very highly after a year's acquaintance.

For county clerk. Our friend and your old friend J. B. McLees deserves to remain in office where he presides efficiently, courteously and economically.

For treasurer. As far as we're concerned we would not think of taking out Will S. Heller. He has an enviable record in efficiency and everything

JULY BEVERAGE TAX

IS $163,920.22

SACRAMENTO, August 22 — Smashing all previous records, California's tax on beer and wine at two cents per gallon amounted to $163,920.22 for July.

Increased sales of domestic beer account for the major part of the gain, according to R. E. Collins, who pointed out that the gallonage of that beverage taxed in July was 6,627,177, or 421,915 gallons more than similar sales in June. The increase was over 8 percent.

"I did, sweetheart. Who'd shoot for you if I wouldn't?"

"Good clean shooting," he mumbled, "but too low. Did you get Babson?"

"I tried and they wouldn't let me. But I smashed Henry Rookby's fool head, dearest. He organized the ruckus at Babson's bidding, but if he lives after the two raps I gave him with the barrel he'll think twice before tackling another such job."

Nate Tichenor smiled a terrible smile. "We backfired on the little cuss, didn't we, love?" He placed an olly finger on her adorable nose and pressed it gently upward. "You'll do.

You're a man's woman. I'm going over to the curb now and sit down before I fall down. If anybody takes me from behind shoot him—and shoot high and for the middle this time. I'm all out of patience. Look after old

Rube."

Rube needed looking after, indeed.

He was unconscious and a three-inch silt on the top of his bald head told the story. Also he had received his share of punches and kicks before

Lorry Kershaw's bullets had dropped his assailants on top of him. The two doctors carried him over to the little grassy strip that ran parallel with the sidewalk and laid him out thereon.

Then turned to look after Lorry's victims. As they sat up, Joe Brainerd photographed them. When that was done he wrote the names of the fallen on a fragment of copy paper and, in his mind, began arranging the lead for this, his biggest news story.

"Get a truck out of that garage,

Joe," Doc Donaldson ordered, "and we'll haul our trade over onto the grass under the shade trees in the plaza. I've used worse dressing stations. Every mother's son of them got it through the foreleg and some of the said legs are busted. I only wing-tipped them," says she—the little vixen."

"You've got to grant her the great gift of charity, Doc. And tremendous forbearance."

"Rats. She was saving them for the hangman. Hello, her hired man is beginning to take an interest in things."

Mr. Tenney's little round baleful eyes had, indeed, commenced to flicker. Lorry bent over him and raised his burly head to her shoulder. "How about you, old-timer?" she crooned.

"Shot all to pieces but not fatally,"

Mr. Tenney murmured slowly. "Where was you, boss, when the shootin' started?

I figured you to guard my rear."

"I guarded it, never fear, Rube. I did all the shooting."

"—I—" Mr. Tenney murmured. "Sorry.

Spoke out o' my turn, I reckon. I'll be up in a minute; I'll make a hand

yet."

A small boy came running down the boulevard as if pursued by a demon.

"There's some fellers over to the office of the Register smashin' things up," he screamed.

Lorry dropped Rube Tenney as if his big body was scorching her and ran for the office of the Register a block away.

As she came panting to the front door she saw a dozen men inside, with axes. They had smashed the editorial desk and the counter in the business office, piled the type for the next issue of the Register, upset the fonts of type and smashed them and were busy wrecking the linotype when the girl's voice reached them above the clang of axes on metal.

"Put 'em up!"

They whirled, facing her, and before the menace of her gun their hands went skyward. Thus she held them until Brainerd arrived with his camera.

"Mug 'em, Brother Brainerd," she commanded. "Steady, boys. Not a move out of anybody. I'll put a bullet through the hand of the man that spills this picture. This is a time exposure, I believe, because the inside light isn't so good."

Joe Brainerd took three photographs of the vandals in his wrecked print shop and turned to the girl. "Where do we go from here?" he demanded humorously.

"To Bill Rooney's calaboose. All right, men. Come out, one at a time, in single file and wend your way to the lockup."

They wended it. Bill Rooney was in his little jail office, thinking things over and gazing dolorously at a hole in a forty-dollar hat, when men began filing silently in on him. "What's this?" he exclaimed.

Lorry's gun covered him from the doorway. "Take his gun, Mr. Brainerd.

Take his keys, too. No nonsense, Mr. Rooney, or you'll dance to my music again."

Brainerd secured the deputy sheriff's gun and keys, unlocked the two cells and closed them again as the wreckers of the Register filed disconsolately in. Then Lorry ordered

Mr. Rooney to go home to his family, and Joe Brainerd locked the jail.

"The remainder of this party is yours, Mr. Brainerd," Lorry then announced. "I've got my boys to look after now."

"Thanks a lot, Miss Kershaw."

"Not at all. No trouble to show goods," she retorted merrily. "If I were you I'd see that old idiot, Anson Towle, and swear out warrants enough for these twelve lunatics to keep them in jail till Christmas. I'd scare Towle if I were you. Threaten him with a mysterious fate so he'll make their bail the limit."

"Babson will bail them out, of course."

"I suppose so, but he'll not like it. The action will tie him to his gang."

CHAPTER XI

The succeeding week Nate Tichenor spent in a hospital at Gold Run whither Doctor Donaldson had ordered him for observation as to possible internal injuries. When at last Nate came to the Circle K ranch again, Lorry saw that, outwardly at least, he appeared to be normal.

"Doc thought my backbone had been tramped out of alignment," he announced, as he kissed her, "but it was only a couple of ribs sprung loose from my spine. Doc warned me not to move around, but I couldn't stay away. Outlaw that I am, I couldn't neglect you for another week."

"I wasn't ready to be a clinging vine; I'm accustomed to man's work—and if you're worth having Mr. Tichenor, you're worth fighting for. I enjoyed it."

"I'm almost afraid to marry you now," he teased. "You'd be a tough wife to handle in a family row. Have you been arrested yet?"

"No, dear. Joe Brainerd appears to have smoothed over the aftermath of that ruckus. He traded with Babson, Babson loaned him the new plant of the Forlorn Valley Citizen and then "Get a truck out of that garage, Joe," Doc Donaldson ordered, "and we'll haul our trade over onto the grass under the shade trees in the plaza. I've used worse dressing sta-

"The remainder of this party is yours, Mr. Brainerd," Lorry then announced. "I've got my boys to look after now."

"Thanks a lot, Miss Kershaw."

"My mother was twenty-four years old at the time and already beginning to be regarded as a fossil, so father added her to his collection and stayed on in Eden Valley and wrote some books nobody ever read, and resolutely refused to learn the cow business. He did manage to put a little bit of culture and uplift into the Hensleys. I made up my mind to stay out of Eden Valley and forget cows as a first aid to making a million dollars."

"When my mother and aunts died I was the sole heir to the Bar H Land and Cattle company, and the corporation was in excellent shape. There was about two hundred thousand dollars in the bank and no debts; there were twelve thousand head of cattle and the ranch was unencumbered. I decided to sell the cattle and lease the ranch. Rube Tenney, who was in command of the ranch, classed the cattle, so I knew what I had and what they were worth. I wrote my attorney to see your father and try to make a trade. It seemed the fair thing to do to let him have first chance. He'd always wanted all of Eden Valley. So he bought all the cattle and leased the Bar H ranch for thirty thousand dollars a year, for five years, with an option to buy the ranch at any time prior to the expiration of the lease and on very easy terms."

"The result was that early in 1920 I found myself foot-loose and with about a million dollars cash in bank. Now, while I was in France I secured a commission. My captain and I got along splendidly together. I got to know this man and to trust him and admire him. In civil life he'd been general manager of a large New York stock brokerage house. He had about fifty thousand dollars and he wanted to buy a seat on the New York Stock Exchange and go into business for himself. But he didn't have enough money to buy the seat and finance his operations."

"I told him I'd finance him—one hundred thousand dollars in cash against his fifty thousand in cash, his experience and ability, and we should be equal partners. We made money from the day we opened our doors."

"And you say you're not a financier."

"The lust for money has never overwhelmed me. I find, too, that I love Eden Valley. I'm going to close out my interests in New York and return here in the fall."

"I shall be very lonely while you are away, Nate."

"And that reminds me that I've sent down to San Francisco for a ring and here it is. If it's too big we'll have a tuck taken in, and if it's too small or you prefer some other stone I'll change it." And he slipped on her finger a square emerald worth at least a hundred steers. It was the first piece of jewelry she had ever owned and her hot tears of emotion baptized it; her warm lips caressed it in a silent promise he knew would never be broken.

"Suppose we get married in a hurry and make the New York trip a honeymoon," he said.

She shook her head. "Impossible until dad's estate has been settled. I can't leave here now. I have to work this outfit out of debt, because I can't afford a trousseau until I do. However, dear, you run on to New York, complete your business there, and when you return we'll make those two mergers you spoke of. I'm too busy now. I've got a lot of those early calves still to brand and I'll have to brand about a thousand late calves in the fall. I don't want to leave any worries behind me when we go on our honeymoon."

"And we'll spend our summers in Eden Valley and our winters outside," he suggested.

She leaned against him a little wearily and held him tight but did not answer.

Sombody once remarked that nothing can be of surpassing interest for a period greater than nine days. For forty-eight hours following the unexpectedly painful and highly dramatic denouement of his plan to sway public opinion against Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, Silas Babson suffered acutely, not because he was sorry for what he had done but because the effect had been so wholly unexpected and pregnant of disaster to him. After having arranged to prevent the expose of the whole affair in court with probable penitentiary sentences for a couple of dozen hitherto respectable but mercurial citizens, he began to view life with a less jaundiced eye; and when, at the expiration of the proverbial nine days, he felt morally certain that "that Eden Valley gang," as he now referred to Nate, Lorry and Rube Tenney, was going to cling to its ancient tradition and have nothing whatsoever to do with legal reprisals, all of his old jauntiness and optimism returned.

He waited two weeks longer and when at the expiration of that period Henry Rookby, looking faintly reminiscent of a potato sprout put forth in a cellar, returned to his labors, Babson left the business of the bank in Mr. Rookby's hands and proceeded to motor forth among the Forlorn Valleyites and argue them into signing the petition to the county board of supervisors for permission to organize the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district. Having had a surveyor de-limit the areas susceptible to surface irrigation, he knew the identity of every farmer whose signature was necessary for his purpose, so a week's time sufficed to acquire the number of signatures legally necessary, and at the next regular meeting of the board of supervisors, of which Babson was a member, he presented the petition in person and addressed his colleagues at some length and with unusual eloquence on the desirability of favorable action by the board.

The chairman of the board rapped with his gavel. "The pros appear to have their innings," he announced smilingly. "Are there any cons to be heard from?"

A man rose in the rear of the hall, walked up to the railing in front of the dais upon which the board sat, and bowed first to the board and then to the audience. "Mr. Chairman—gentlemen: My name is John W. Gagan, a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brooks, Gagan and Brooks, and I appear as the legal representative of the three riparian owners along Eden Valley creek, to wit, Estate of Ranceford Kershaw, deceased, the Bar H Land and Cattle company, and the Mountain Valley Power company, the last two companies, as is generally known, being owned in their entirety by Mr. Nathan Tichenor. On behalf of my clients, I desire formally to protest to this honorable board against the formation of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district and will state my reasons briefly."

Gagan immediately proceeded to do so, pointing to his auditors precisely the picture that Nate Tichenor had painted to him, challenging Lon Morton to gainsay one single legal statement. Gagan spoke simply, earnestly, arraying his facts in logical sequence.

When he had finished his address Gagan bowed to the board and started to leave the chamber. There was silence until he was half way down the aisle, then a storm of hisses and boos broke around him. Gagan looked back as he reached the door and saw that Silas Babson was on his feet, his hand raised for silence.

"So you're going to refute my statement, eh?" Gagan called back. "Well, before I depart I'll give you and your deluded followers some very good advice, free. The man who acts as his own attorney has a fool for a client."

TO BE CONTINUED.

Insects Take Huge Toll in Damage to Books, According to Some Librarians

Insects of various kinds take a yearly toll in book destruction that amounts to millions of dollars, says Scientific American. Perhaps the worst offenders in this respect are bookworms, the larvae and an insect known generally as the "drug store beetle," and scientifically as Sitotroga panicea. It seems to have a particular fondness for practically everything, and thrives on arsenic, lead, pepper, and other poisonous and irritant substances.

Once this beetle lays its eggs in a library and the larvae begin feeding, librarians are likely to age overnight, for the larvae feed voraciously on all parts of books whether they be cheap modern editions or priceless ancient volumes. Many poisons have been used, to defeat this foe of books. Thomas M. Iiams of the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, San Marino, Calif., in the Library Quarterly, told of several infestations of the larvae in that library and the attempts to destroy them.

Acting on the advice of Dr. Tracy I. Storer of the University of California Agricultural college, hydrocyanic acid gas and several other powerful fumigants were used but with indifferent success. It was then decided to resort to vacuum fumigation. This would give perfect fumigation into every crevice of books, of which large numbers could be fumigated simultaneously. Also, this method would destroy the microscopic eggs of the beetle, as well as the larvae, by rupturing the thin membrane at one end of the egg and permitting entry of the poison gas.

The problem of an ideal fumigant was solved when Dr. Arnold O. Beckman of the California Institute of Technology, discovered that ethylene oxide and carbon dioxide could be combined in a liquid that is neither inflammable nor explosive.

Good Taste Today

BY EMILY POST

Author of

"ETIQUETTE," "THE BLUE BOOK OF SOCIAL USAGE," ETC.

CONVENTION PRESCRIBES

DEAR Mrs. Post: Is it proper to give a pharmacist the title of "Doctor" or not? I am about to have wedding announcements engraved and am wavering between "Mister" and "Doctor" because I don't know.

Answer: This is really a question of personal opinion, but best taste usually confines such use of the title Dr. to a D. D. or an M. D. or a D. D. S.

My dear Mrs. Post: The depression has not sufficiently lifted from our family and I must have a small house wedding because of the expenses. Please tell me how to plan an informal marriage service and still not have things any old way?

Answer: You can't have an informal marriage service, because it is a church ceremony. The words ceremonial and formal mean the same thing. You can of course have a simple wedding. Arrange a background of flowers or tree branches, or still more simply, stand in front of drawn curtains. The service is of course the same for every marriage: the clergyman enters first, the groom and best man follow him, your maid of honor then enters alone, and you with your father follow her. After the ceremony you and your husband turn and face the guests who one by one offer you their good wishes. Serve wedding cake and a fruit punch. If this seems to you not enough, add sandwiches and either tea or coffee or bouillon. This is really plenty.

Dear Mrs. Post: Very often I have a family in to dinner, of which one member is left-handed. My husband suggested that next time they are expected I set one place at table with the knives and spoons on the left side of the plate and the forks on the right. Is this ever done?

Answer: Not that I know of. Left-handed people must naturally accustom themselves to conventional table setting. So much so that it is questionable whether upsetting the regularity of your table would even add to the comfort of those who in picking up implements have become accustomed to cross their hands over their plates.

MISCELLANEOUS

DEAR Mrs. Post: I like tinted nail polish and my husband doesn't. He argues that such polish is decidedly opposed to good taste. We have gradually gotten into an argument about this, which is becoming irritating out of all proportion to its trifling subject, and we have now decided to ask you to decide whether tinted nails are anything for a husband to grow rabid about?

Answer: Since the supposition of a husband's growing rabid over nail polish is not quite believable, I'm not quite sure whether this letter is intended to be answered seriously or to be taken as a jest. However, supposing the question to be genuine, I would say that nails carefully manicured and slightly tinted are certainly in good taste. But gilded or silvered or deeply colored ones are something else again. In fact, those deepest red ones, which look as though the nail had been torn off and the finger ends left bleeding, are revolting to all except the few who have become inured to the shock of them. As a matter of fact, I doubt very much if a man can be found who does not hate them.

Treating of Food Matters

Exposition by Dietetic Authority May Relieve Some Perplexities of Readers; Suggestions for Sauces to Suit All Tastes.

The following suggestions and advice are from a recognized American authority on the subjects dealt with:

The column today is devoted to answering questions which have been asked by readers. Perhaps some of these questions have been in your mind, but not enough to urge you to take your pen in hand. Here is the first:

"Which are better—broad noodles or thin noodles, and what is the best way to cook them?" The answer is neither is better—some like one kind and some like another. Probably the thin cut noodles are most popular for soup. For noodles boiled or fried, a medium size is usually chosen, although one of the best dishes made from the foundation, which I had the other day, used the very thinnest. The boiled noodles were dressed with almonds browned in butter and sprinkled with poppy seeds. This is a dish of German origin, and is really food for a gourmet.

Now, as to cooking noodles. They should be placed in boiling water and cooked only until tender—five to eight minutes is the average time. Noodles need plenty of butter or sauce with them, as they are rather bland in flavor. One good combination is noodles, fried apples and buttered fine breadcrumbs; grated cheese, tomato sauce, stewed kidneys, sautéed chicken livers are other suggestions for sauces. I am sure I have mentioned before the attractiveness of a noodle ring as a setting for creamed meats, fish or vegetables; or for buttered vegetables. The boiled noodles are pressed into a ring mold, which is set in hot water to heat, and are then turned out on a hot platter ready for the filling.

Another question: "Will you send me a recipe for chicken soufflé? What is the trick in keeping it from falling?" The recipe is given today. The "trick" is using a white sauce, or soft breadcrumb formation for the beaten eggs and minced chicken, and setting the pan into hot water while baking, for a rather long time (45 minutes in a modern oven). This recipe can be varied by using other kinds of meat, fish or vegetables. Be sure plenty of seasoning is used for a soufflé, which otherwise may be too bland to be interesting.

Another letter writer asks what is the difference between brown Betty and scalloped apples. There are a dozen different ways of making this dessert. I am going to give you my favorite method today. You may prefer brown, instead of white sugar, and you may like to use soft crumbs instead of the fried breadcrumbs. Of course any other fruit may be used in a recipe of this sort. I personally like a mixture of sliced bananas and apples in this recipe. I also like a combination of rhubarb and raisins. Hard sauce is usually served with this dessert, but a thinner sauce, or plain cream, is very good. As a reader has asked for a recipe for ice cream sauce I will include it today in connection with brown Betty, which, by the way, may be served hot or cold. I prefer it hot myself, especially if hard sauce is used. This sauce belongs with hot foods, although one of its forms "butter frosting" is good on cakes.

which are always at least cool when they are served.

Scalloped Apples.

3 cups bread
3 tablespoons butter
4 apples
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Cut bread into dice and saute with butter until brown. Peel apples and cut very thin. Dredge with sugar mixed with cinnamon. Cover bottom of baking dish with the bread, then add apples and remaining bread in alternate layers, saving a few of the crumbs to put on top. Bake one-half hour, covered, and the last fifteen minutes uncovered, in a moderate oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

Chicken Soufflé.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk
3 eggs separated
1 cup minced chicken
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons onion juice

Melt butter, stir in flour, add milk gradually, stirring constantly until smooth. Pour gradually onto well-beaten yolks. Add minced chicken, salt and onion juice. Season to taste. Cool. Fold in stiffly beaten whites, place in a well-buttered mold. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) about forty-five minutes, or until firm.

Ice Cream Sauce.

3 tablespoons butter
1 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 egg yolks
½ cup milk
¼ cup cream, whipped

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, then the vanilla and beaten egg yolks. Add the milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until it thickens. Remove from the fire and fold in the whipped cream.

MRS. WILLIAMS GAINS RELIEF FROM "RHEUMATIC" PAINS

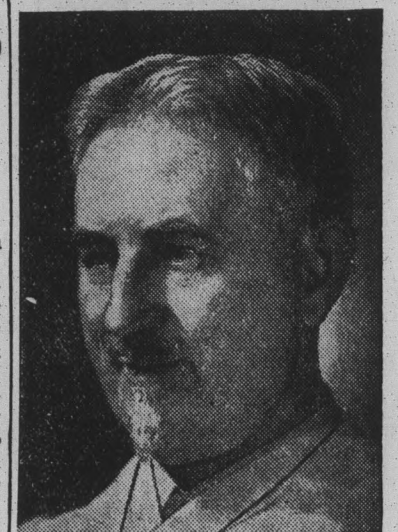

Dr. W. E. Fitch Explains why Natural Mineral Water Often Helpful In Chronic Ailments

Mrs. H. Williams, 16 Princeton Street, Clifton, New Jersey, writes: "I suffered very badly with rheumatism but after taking Crazy Water Crystals I am a different person. They are wonderful. I would not be without them, they did me so much good."

Why is it that a fine natural mineral water, made at home from Crazy Water Crystals has benefited so many thousands suffering from "rheumatic" pains and other chronic ailments?

Dr. W. E. Fitch, noted medical authority on mineral water, in a recent radio talk over the National Broadcasting System stated: "For many years, it has been a mystery even to the medical world just how natural mineral waters produced the amazing results that have made them so popular. Scientific and medical discoveries and research in the last few years, however, are penetrating these secrets of Nature, so that now medical men have a new understanding of the reasons for the power of natural mineral water to relieve suffering. One of these reasons is what is known as secondary mineralization, by which is meant that not only the predominating chemical constituents of a mineral water are of aid but also what are known as the secondary minerals—those present in infinitesimal quantities. The very fact of their being present in this way causes them to have a much more powerful systemic effect than if they were there in larger quantities. Let me recommend wholeheartedly to sufferers from chronic diseases the use of a suitable natural mineral water as a powerful adjuvant."

If you are suffering from "rheumatic" pains, we suggest you investi-

Crazy Water Crystals are just minerals crystallized from a great natural mineral water flowing at Mineral Wells, Texas, and Thorndale, Texas, a type of mineral water that has built one of the world's greatest health resorts. Nothing is added to the minerals, and by dissolving them in plain water you make a fine mineral water at home at a cost of only a few cents a gallon.

A standard sized package, sufficient for three weeks mineral water treatment in your own home costs only $1.50. Get one today. Crazy Water Co., Mineral Wells, Texas.

Local Dahlia Grower Wins at La Mesa Show

Out at La Mesa August 18 and 19 was held the seventh annual Festival De Las Flores or flower show to most of us. That section has many wonderful gardens and good florists but it remained for an Ocean Beach man to capture a good lot of the prizes.

David G. Houston, of 4765 Brighton avenue whose love for flowers is mostly for dahlias, was awarded five first prizes, four second prizes and for these awards was given the additional honor and presented with the dahlia sweepstakes for amateurs.

Under section "F" amateurs for dahlias Houston took the following awards:

1st prize: Best collection and display of dahlias.

1st prize: Best 6 blooms pompom dahlias.

1st prize: Best collection of unregistered seedlings.

1st prize: One best unregistered seedlings in show.

1st prize: Best collection miniature dahlias.

2nd prize: Best collection pompom dahlias.

2nd prize: Best collection miniature decorative dahlias.

2nd prize: Best receptable of pompom dahlias.

2nd prize: Best receptable of autumn shaded dahlias.

The winning of the above prizes gave points enough to win the dahlia sweepstakes for amateurs.

Besides growing prize winning blossoms wherever they are shown Mr. Houston does a lot of fishing and very few tournament horse shoe contests are held without "Happy" being there to enjoy the game.

SERA BAND CONCERT ENJOYED BY HUNDREDS

Last Friday evening the San Diego SERA band played a very enjoyable concert on the street in front of the Ocean Beach Woman's club house.

Marches, medleys, waltz and classical numbers were well rendered by this new organization under the able leadership of James B. Larkin.

The band came at the invitation of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce who arranged the lighting seating, and also paid for the bus which brought the members from their practice hall in Balboa park and returned them to San Diego.

The beaches would like to have the band often and are especially entitled to hear them frequently during the summer season, at which time we have so many visitors and the evenings are pleasant to be out.

Rev. W. S. Dunn will conduct the morning service at 11 o'clock. His sermon theme will be "The Best Purpose for Such a Time as This." The Young people's meeting at 6:30 is a time for discussion of the things that appeal to youth.
